

Volunteering

International Volunteer
Day
5 December

Volunteering is when people help their community and don't get anything for it. I think it's important because volunteers learn how to collaborate and they learn what teamwork is. In my opinion, volunteering is a positive thing because they improve our community. I met a lot of volunteers after the earthquake when they helped us.

Volunteering is helping someone in need . You use your free time to help and clean without being paid. Volunteering is very important because some people don't have money to pay workers, so volunteers help. In a recent situation in Petrinja, when the earthquake hit, my family and I helped people who couldn't go to their homes.

Volunteering is helping people who are unable to buy clothes and food. It is important for people who are now homeless in the earthquake. They need goods, food, etc. I think it's very good to volunteer because it's nice to help others and because people remember you for good deeds. I participated in volunteering in my church. There we gave food and clothes to people who were in need. There was also another task to raise money for those whose houses were damaged in the earthquake.

Volunteering is trying to make a difference. It's when you willingly want to help people, nature, animals, etc., without expecting something in return. I think it's a great way to help and make friendship along the way, and I'd love to do it.

Volunteering is helping people who don't have a lot of money for some things or work for free. My opinion is that the world is a better place with volunteering. I also think it's very important for our self-confidence and our mental health because after volunteering you feel happy, proud and very self-confident. One of my best friends, Martina, helped in the community after the big earthquake. She delivered food, drinks and other donations. I'm so proud of her!

Noela, 8.c

Volunteering is giving your time and abilities to help others. It is very important because we make the Earth a better place. In my opinion, volunteering is really helpful and I was really glad there were volunteers when the earthquake happened in my hometown and they were really helpful. I really like to help others and I've done some volunteering work myself.

I've met a lot of people who are kind and want to help people without any money or prize. They are volunteers. Personally, I know what volunteering means because I was a volunteer in the 5th grade. It's a really nice feeling when you help people and see their smiles.

Rea, 8.a

Volunteering is doing something or helping someone for free. It is important because you collaborate with someone to help people, animals, nature and so on. I think it is the kindest way to do some some good things and feel special.

Mirea, 8.b

Volunteering is doing good to this world. Volunteering is helping someone without getting any benefits. It's important to help because some people around us don't have what we have. Maybe they don't have a house, food or even family, but that's where we come in. We can make a change. I think volunteering is a beautiful action that anyone can do and it's helpful to make yourself happy, too.
